

Freelance Graphic Designer (Temp, Part-Time)

The National Whistleblower Center (NWC) is the leading nonprofit dedicated to protecting and rewarding whistleblowers around the world. We assist whistleblowers in finding legal aid, advocate for stronger whistleblower protection laws, and educate the public about whistleblowers' critical role in protecting democracy and the rule of law.

We are currently seeking a graphic designer who can help the team develop creative assets for ongoing paid and social media campaigns. These campaigns are aimed at delivering timely communications to potential climate insiders who work in a number of industries negatively impacting the environment.

This designer would be working alongside our creative director and social media consultant to create relevant climate-oriented graphics for Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, and our website, as well as short text-based animations and short explainers. Our goal with the graphics is to educate insiders of their legal options for reporting misconduct or retaliation, but also encourage them to engage with our organization regarding major issues and situations they've witnessed at their company.

Other design assignments may include:

- Visualizing data and designing for end-of-year project reports
- Creating intros and outros for ongoing video projects
- Developing infographics and other similar media
- Creating A/B variations for ongoing campaigns
- Designing improved versions of existing documents

Timing/Hours: We're looking for this freelancer to start immediately and work with us short-term until December 31. This is a 20 hours per week independent contractor position.

Qualifications

- 3+ years of experience as a graphic designer
- Degree in graphic design, illustration or art preferred
- Photoshop, Illustrator, After Effects, Premiere skills
- Good grasp of color, typography, layouts, whitespace
- Good attitude and great sense of creative problem solving
- Interested in law, justice, and big issues affecting the climate
- Experience working with/in creative agencies a plus!
