

Research Associate

National Whistleblower Center (NWC) is a nonprofit organization focused on educating, empowering and advocating for whistleblowers. NWC is currently engaged in several climate-related research projects focused on the oil & gas, coal, timber, and utilities industries.

The Research Associate will serve as part of a small staff and consultant team that carries out these programs.

Key responsibilities will include:

- Producing high quality research products that summarize large amounts of information from diverse sources;
- Responding to quick-turn-around research requests;
- Assisting researchers and project managers with literature reviews and reports;
- Drafting webpages, blogs, fact sheets, and campaign materials; and
- Assisting with dissemination of research across NWC platforms.

NWC is seeking candidates with the:

- Ability to write and edit on deadline, making complicated material clear for a variety of audiences;
- Ability to write persuasively and in short form;
- Flexibility and ability to adapt to new developments; and
- Ability to work independently while prioritizing tasks and meeting deadlines.

This is a temporary remote role for an independent contractor. To apply, send resume and an example of your work to hiringmanager@whistleblowers.org (please use “NWC Research Associate” in subject line).
